

GOOD NEWS CHURCH INVITES YOU

This year, actually read the Bible.

Daily Word — a free reading plan on goodnewsde.com that makes it simple.

You want to know God's Word. You've probably tried. Most of us have a plan that started strong in Genesis and quietly died somewhere in Leviticus — and every year it doesn't happen, the Bible feels a little more like a book for other people. It isn't. It's for you. The problem was never you; the problem was that reading through Scripture felt complicated, and nobody handed you a simple way to do it.

We get it — we've fizzled in February too. So our church built Daily Word: one quiet page that knows your plan, remembers your place, and shows you only what today asks of you. About fifteen minutes. That's it.

THREE STEPS. THAT'S THE WHOLE THING.

1. Sign in. Go to goodnewsde.com, open Daily Word, and sign in with your church account. Two minutes, once.
2. Pick your plan. Whole Bible in a year. Psalms and Gospels. Or the M'Cheyne calendar — four short readings a day, trusted by believers since 1842. Change it whenever life changes.
3. Show up for today. Read it in the clean, quiet reader — or press play and listen while the words light up as they're spoken. Check it off. Come back tomorrow. Miss a day? The catch-up list holds it for you, without guilt.

| "Your word is a lamp for my feet, a light on my path."

| Psalm 119:105

Here's what's at stake: another year can slip by with the Bible sitting on the shelf — or a year from now you can be someone who has walked the whole story, Genesis to Revelation, fifteen minutes at a time. Same year. Your choice.

Start today. Go to goodnewsde.com, open Daily Word, and pick your plan. It's free, there's nothing to install, and day one takes five minutes. Questions? Grab Sam or anyone on staff on Sunday.
